1) What would you say makes your jurisdiction great?
We are a diverse community of hard working people and close neighborhoods. We all treasure the history we share as a Courthouse town and the unique relationship we have with George Mason University. Our sense of community is unparalleled in the Washington metropolitan region.

2) In 20 words or less, what message would you like to share with the George Mason University community?
As mayor, I want the bonds that the City and Mason share to only get stronger in the years ahead.

3) What is your favorite local restaurant?
Without picking a favorite, I'm pleased the city of Fairfax has over 150 restaurants in our 6.3 square miles. There is a restaurant for every palate, but I tend to prefer Asian and Italian.

4) Do you have Apple or Android?
I'm an Apple guy. I value the simplicity, design and security of all Apple products. I'm like a kid at Christmas awaiting the launch of new products.

5) What is the biggest challenge facing your jurisdiction today?
Managing growth and development. I am a strong proponent of economic development but it must be carefully managed in the years ahead.
